ROSCOE BRONG, Pastor

Man of the Ages

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt will go down in history as one of the greatest men in the annals of civilization. Coming upon the scene of national and international activities at this time of epoch making, and demonstrating his ability to grapple with unprecedented problems that affected lives of millions of people, he made himself a man of the ages.

Fifty years from now when the student of history opens world history at the page upon which the account of the events of this period is recorded, he will note that at least three factors contributed to making President Roosevelt an outstanding world figure.

First, as a student of world history, he will naturally turn to an account of international affairs, and there he will see looming in the foreground the figure of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, playing the role of the "good neighbor," and bringing to the attention of the people, not only of his own country, but of the world, the idea that a community of nations must cooperate in their diplomatic relationships to the end that each must depend upon the others for both foreign and domestic prosperity.

At the time he took office in 1933, when the whole nation was torn by the ravages of the depression, it is remarkable how Mr. Roosevelt divided his attention between the domestic affairs and speeding the country to prosperity, and international affairs, bringing about trade pacts and promoting international good will, the former of which has aided materially in conquering the depression. When whole sections of the earth were in an upheaval of war, especially Europe, we here in America have a feeling of security because of the spirit of good will that mutually exists between our country and the great world powers of the earth.

His policies and those of the administration on war have given us a new insight into the factors that contribute to the cause of war. The heart of the evil of stirring up war has been struck at by showing what part munition manufacturers play in causing international trouble, and neutrality laws have recently been passed to prohibit their interference in the affairs of belligerent nations.

The president's recent visit to South America has placed a new emphasis upon the Monroe Doctrine and has helped in consolidating the western hemisphere into a community of nations of good neighbors. This will have a profound effect upon other nations in promoting peace and good will.

Second, fifty years from now, when the student of history has scanned the pages of world history, he will be so impressed by the part played by Franklin D. Roosevelt in international affairs during these trying times that he will enquire more definitely into his actions at home in the administration of the affairs of his own country. And he will find that the political views held by Mr. Roosevelt are another factor that contributed to making him a world figure.

Democracy is the doctrine of the government of the people; a system of government by which the wishes of the people are carried out by those who are elected to administer the affairs of the state. At all times it has been held up as the ideal form of government. In America it had its inception in the minds of statesmen when the colonists revolted against the despotism of the British sovereign when the parliament refused to recognize their request.

In as much as the wishes of the people are a vital, living force, so also is democracy a vital, living impulse, and therefore subject to growth and expansion, the same as the physical and psychological makeup of the individual. As the individual reacts to his environment, so does democracy react and adjust itself to its surroundings. As the individual retains his identity during and after his adjustments to environment, so does democracy remain essentially the same; even the subject matter (social and economic conditions, etc.) is constantly changing.

Democracy is the same when employed by a quiet pastoral people and when employed by people living under the complex social and economic conditions as at present in America; yet it must of necessity employ entirely different methods of protection for the individual or group of individuals whom some other person or interest has sought to injure.

The principles of democracy are so broad and deep that it holds within its scope adequate means to adjust every conceivable situation that might stand in the way of any person enjoying "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, following in the footsteps of Jefferson, Jackson, and Wilson, under whose administrations sweeping reforms were brought about that preserved a broad interpretation to the spirit of democracy, and had measures passed that brought the nation out of an economic depression that had not only wrecked our economic structure, but had made serious inroads to undermine our social system and destroy the morale of a free and happy people.

The Roosevelt administration, true to the spirit of democracy, has been such that the wishes of the people have been heard and respected, and therefore it reflected in every gesture the government made to adjust the affairs of the nation in restoring prosperity. The triple-A was the result of the concerted wishes of the farmers of the nation; the NRA was the result of the advice of labor leaders, speaking the wishes of the various classes of laborers whom they represented; and had not the federal courts interfered so strenuously in favor of capitalists and industrialists, a high note in democracy would have been sounded that would have been heard for many a decade.

There was nothing radical about these measures, but simply democracy asserting itself in certain directions to meet a crisis and thus protect itself from destruction from the land where a free people have for over 160 years the song singing in their hearts, "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

The third factor that the historian of a half century from now will notice that contributed in making President Franklin D. Roosevelt a world figure is his warm hearted and humanitarian attitude toward the under-privileged men and women who have been struggling under the inequitable system of government where favored classes ruled unoppressed.

This attitude had shown itself during the tenure of the many public offices which he had held, but more especially since he has been chosen by such huge majorities in both elections for the chief executive of the United States has this dominant trait of character shown itself preeminently in his personality.

Born of aristocratic stock and reared in affluence, he has shown an unusually remarkable concern for the men and women who have been forced to live in a state of necessity which he himself has never personally experienced.

During the campaign of 1932, when the people of this great country were struggling with adversity and when chaos reigned in every department of our American civilization, the calm earnest voice of the country squire of Hyde Park brought a soothing sensation to their rather frayed senses.

There was something significant in the tone of his voice when he used the well known and popular phrase, "My friends," which went direct to the hearts of the American people, and consequently they took him as a friend.

His strong and appealing personality was conveyed to the people, which instilled in their confused minds a confidence seldom reposed in a candidate for so high a public office.

They knew by that sincerity that he had the courage to back up and carry out the promise of reform that would inevitably result in a "new deal" for men and women in the masses.

The man on the street and the woman at the cookstove may not know a single thing about political science, but they do know that they have centered their confidence in a man who not only proved himself to be a great statesman, but one who has the courage to stand in the face of "big business" and tell these barons of wealth and captains of industry "what's what" when their policies affect the welfare of the common people. And the people in masses are well aware of the fact that their condition has been vastly improved by having so placed their trust in Mr. Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt is truly a humanitarian, and one vested with power, with courage to wield that

GEVEDON

March 16.—Dr. E. C. Gevedon, 67, of Grassy Creek, Morgan county, Ky., died in the Mary Chiles hospital on Monday night. Dr. Gevedon was stricken with pneumonia a week ago and was taken to the hospital last Friday.

The funeral will be held at the Grassy Creek cemetery Wednesday, March 17, at 1:30.

Dr. Gevedon was a graduate of the Louisville School of Medicine and had been practicing in this section of the county for more than forty years. He had been a member of the board of education and was always active in the civic and political affairs of Morgan county and eastern Kentucky.

He was the son of Dr. W. L. Gevedon, who had been a soldier in the Civil war and a physician for forty years, and died two years ago at the age of 95.

Dr. E. C. Gevedon is survived by his wife, Lula Gevedon, and two sons, Victor Gevedon, at home, and Raleigh Gevedon, a guard at the narcotic farm near Lexington. He has one brother living, J. F. Gevedon, of Grassy Creek. He is an uncle of J. Blaine Nickell, attorney at West Liberty. He has one grandchild, Betty Jo Gevedon, 7, daughter of Victor.

Dr. Gevedon was a Mason and a member of the Chapel lodge. The Masonic fraternity will have charge of the funeral.

The county has lost an outstanding citizen and a prominent physician.

McGUIRE

Aunt Susan McGuire died at her home at Malone on March 12, aged 85 years. She had been a patient since 1925 as a result of a fall had she borne her affliction patiently and calmly good will and her cheerful attitude to the host of friends who came to see her day by day.

She was a faithful and devoted member of the Christian church for 65 years.

She was married in 1873 to Stewart N. McGuire, and of the twelve children survive: Grant McGuire, Lynx, Ohio; C. C. McGuire, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Chester McGuire, Mr. Dora Nickell, and Cora McGuire, at Malone. A brother, Paschal Kilgore, of Salsville, and two sisters, Mrs. George Steele of Moore and Mrs. Frank McKenzie of Hazard also remain to mourn her departure.

Funeral services were conducted at the Southfork church by Elder, C. E. Lykins and Harlan Murphy, and the body was laid to rest in the Southfork cemetery to await the resurrection morning.

WELLS

Dayton, Ohio. Mrs. Lenna A. Wells was born Oct. 12, 1910, died March 8, 1937, aged 26 years, four months, and 24 days. She was born at Blaze, Ky., and lived there until 1933, when she came to Dayton, where she remained until her death.

She was married to Volney Wells on Nov. 18, 1933. Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Francis Lewis, of this place, one sister, Mrs. Dima Lewis, of West Liberty, Ky., and one brother, Asa Lewis, of Blaze, Ky.

Funeral services were conducted by Mr. Bridenbaugh at Frank Riesinger's funeral home. The body was interred in the Lower Miami cemetery.

power for the benefit and betterment of humanity. One could go on indefinitely enumerating the reforms that have directly affected millions of people and made life better and richer for them.

In conclusion, it would be proper to state that political bias and prejudice has tried to destroy the honor and confidence in which President Roosevelt is held by the great mass of American people.

Other men of another political faith had the golden opportunity of helping the people and thus won for themselves and their party the honor and prestige that President Roosevelt and the party which he so proudly heads now enjoys.

One can only think of Mr. Roosevelt's predecessor chasing mirages of recovery around some imaginary corner for three years, while the condition of the country grew worse and worse, with people actually starving while wheat and corn rotted in the fields.

Thus compared, there is no wonder that Franklin Delano Roosevelt, taking advantage of the opportunity, has truly become a man of the ages.

REVIVAL MEETING

At the Baptist Church, West Liberty

A revival meeting began Monday night at the Baptist church here and will continue thru Friday night of next week. Evangelists, Messrs. M. and Mrs. David M. Hughes, of Newport, are in charge of the meeting and singing. Rev. V. B. Castberry of Ashland is doing the preaching.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are noted evangelists and musicians, devoting all their time to this work, and are in constant demand both north and south. One of the attractive features of their work is the ear pleasing, heart lifting, soul comforting music made by Mrs. Hughes on the piano, which is an unusual feature of their work. Then too, Mrs. Hughes is a help to the young people in their religious life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are well known here and have been here nine years. They have labored here for over ten years.

Mrs. Hughes is a young people each evening and the song and praise will begin at 7:00 p.m.

To the public in general, the advantage of this revival is the singing at said last night, "Ours is our country, ours is our home, give more to spiritual ideals than to any other movement among men." More eyes have been opened, more hearts freed from the bondage of sin, more fuses settled, more families reunited, more hands and wives going on their wayward sons and daughters home to roam no more.

Evangelists and gamblers turned to honest labor, respectable citizens, and men and women, and a new life from the broad way to heaven, Jesus Christ, the only way to heaven, through this revival, than any other movement on earth."

Come and have your part in this revival.

CASKEY

Mrs. Lay Bala Hammond Caskey was born April 20, 1881, near Lenox, and departed this life March 12, 1937, at her home in West Liberty, aged 55 years, 10 months, and 20 days.

Miss Hammond was married to Yancey Caskey on June 6, 1896. To this union were born two children, two of whom are Mrs. Vick Wallace of Glasgow, Va., and Minford Caskey of West Liberty. She is survived also by her husband and one grandson, James, who had been with his grandparents during their poor health and has now returned to West Virginia with his parents.

Mrs. Caskey had not been well for some time. About two weeks before her death she took to her bed with pneumonia and was seriously ill from the start. Her son-in-law and daughter rushed to her bedside. Her son, who was away also, came home. All that was possible was done to relieve her suffering. Her mother, who lives on Elk fork, had the flu, but she and the stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, arrived Friday, although they had to walk some distance to the grade. Other relatives and friends came to comfort the bereaved.

Mrs. Caskey was a native and lifelong resident of Morgan county. She moved from Lenox to West Liberty with her husband three years ago. She was a member of the Christian church over 35 years. Many childhood and girlhood friends testify to her true, noble life. She was always cheerful, patient, and uncomplaining. She was a devoted wife and mother and a kind neighbor.

Rev. Harlan Murphy, assisted by Roscoe Brong and C. L. Neikirk, held funeral services at the home Saturday afternoon. The body was taken Sunday morning to the Lenox cemetery for interment.

MASONS TO MEET

Highland Lodge no. 311, F. & A. M., will meet at its hall in West Liberty on Saturday evening, March 20, in regular communication. Arrangements will be completed for the re-obligation meeting called by the grand master for April 9. There is a standing invitation to out of town visiting brothers. A full membership presence is requested.

Lewis and His C. I. O. Are Moving Forward

YOU'VE got to hand it to John L. Lewis. The beetle-browed leader of the C. I. O. is going places and doing things.

John L. Lewis

despite several setbacks in his plans to unionize all industry. The steel magnates are yielding to a great extent, and the threat of a general strike in that industry is fading out. With the Carnegie-Illinois corporation, largest subsidiary of United States Steel, leading the way, the biggest concerns in that industry are granting increases in wages and the 40 hour week, and agreeing to deal with the unions affiliated with the C. I. O. This is the first time in 45 years that "Big Steel" has recognized union labor as a bargaining agency for its employees.

Lewis and Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee, were jubilant, but the Carnegie-Illinois corporation issued an official statement that toned them down a bit.

"The company will recognize any individual, group, or organization as the spokesmen for those employees it represents," the statement said, "but it will not recognize any single organization or group as the exclusive bargaining agency for all employees."

"Under this policy the status of the employee representation plan is likewise unchanged. It will continue as the spokesmen for those of the employees who prefer that method of collective bargaining, which has proved so mutually satisfactory throughout its existence."

The General Electric company declared its willingness to discuss a national collective bargaining agreement with the United Electrical Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate; and the indications were that Lewis and the Appalachian coal operators would be able to negotiate a new wage and hour agreement in time to avert a coal miners' strike.

The C. I. O. announced the formation of the United Shoe Workers of America with a nucleus of 20,000 members and went after New England's shoe industry. Still more important, Lewis and his aids let it be known that the next target of the C. I. O. drive would be the textile industry.

General Electric and some of the other big concerns that yielded to a certain extent to the demands of the C. I. O. followed the example of the steel corporation in asserting that they still reserved the right to deal with other unions or groups of employees, and in some cases company unions undertook to maintain their independent positions. Furthermore, President Green and other leaders of the American Federation of Labor entered wholeheartedly into the fight against Lewis and his C. I. O. The latter gained strength by the decision of aluminum workers at the New Kensington, Pa., plant of the Aluminum Company of America to renounce the federation in favor of the C. I. O.

In Chicago there was a strike of taxicab drivers who formed a union and sought the support of the Lewis organization. They demanded higher pay.

Eight thousand employees of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company's Pittsburgh plant demanded a 20 per cent raise in wages and it was feared they would start a strike if the demand were rejected.

Because the Chrysler motor company refused to recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as the sole bargaining agency for all its employees, a strike was called in all its major units in Detroit, and other plants of the company were closed because of dependence on Detroit production. More than 50,000 workers were thus thrown into idleness. Vice President B. E. Hutchinson of the corporation said it appeared that "the conferences into which we entered with good faith had only one purpose, namely, to put this union in complete control over all our employees, regardless of individual wishes."

The union also called a strike at the Hudson Motor Car company because, they asserted, officials of the concern were stalling in negotiations on working conditions.

United States Gets Meats From Foreign Nations

FIGURES supplied by the Department of Commerce show that the live stock producers who predicted the United States would be forced to depend on foreign meat imports this year were right. During January the arrivals of foreign pork at domestic ports set an all time record for any month, and the imports of meat were far in excess of those a year ago. This condition is blamed on the drought and the four-year federal crop control program.

Meat imports in January aggregated 30,387,000 pounds, compared with 19,922,000 in January of 1936 and only 7,140,000 pounds in 1935. Dressed pork imports alone reached the record figure of 5,580,033 pounds compared with 2,250,389 in January, 1936, and only 265,000 in 1935.

Heavy imports of pork continued during the first three weeks of February, government figures for an receipts at New York indicated. During this period foreign nations shipped 2,988,500 pounds of pork to New York, which exceeded imports for any February.

Canada proved to be the largest source of supply for the American market. Imports of all kinds of meat from Canada during the first month of this year were approximately 17,102,000 pounds, an increase of 100 per cent over the 5,884,000 pounds imported in January of last year.

Edward and Wally May Lease Maryland Home

ACCORDING to a copyrighted article in the Philadelphia Record, Edward, duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson may live in the United States after their marriage early in May. The duke, says the Record, is "considering most favorably" for their home the Clusters, the castle-like country residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner A. Parker near Brooklandville, Md., just outside of Baltimore.

Duke of Windsor

he had options also on an estate in Carroll county, Maryland, and on one on Long Island, but will take up neither.

"The option on the Clusters provides for a year's lease," the newspaper says. "It gives the right to the duke to renew the lease for two additional years if the place proves satisfactory. Apparently feeling certain Edward will lease his estate, Parker has ordered improvements to meet the duke's specifications."

Death of Dr. W. T. Hornaday, American Zoologist

DR. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, one of America's foremost naturalists, died at his home in Stamford, Conn., at the age of eighty-two. He was the first director of the New York Zoological park, retiring in 1926. Doctor Hornaday was a devoted advocate of the conservation of wild life and steadily worked for the protection of migratory fowl and for federal game refuges.

One of the leaders of the Republican party passed with the death of Mark L. Requa in Los Angeles. He was national committeeman from California from 1932 to 1936, was a close friend of Herbert Hoover and for years a dominant figure in politics on the West Coast. During the World War Mr. Requa was director of the oil division of the United States fuel administration and the "motorless week-ends" he established are still remembered.

More Prominent Russians May Be Put on Trial

DICTATOR STALIN hasn't yet cleaned up the Russian Communist party to his own satisfaction, and it seems probable that more men once prominent among the bolsheviks will go to trial as traitors.

Foremost among these unfortunate ones are Alexis Rykov, former president of the council of people's commissars, or premier, and Nikolai Bukharin, former editor of the government organ Izvestia. These two were expelled from the Communist party the other day on charges of anti-party activity, and it is believed in Moscow they and a score of others will soon be tried for conspiring to overthrow the Stalin regime.

For ten years Rykov was premier of the Soviet Union, and before that, during the civil war, he had the job of provisioning the Red army. Though succeeding to Lenin's position, he did not have his power, for Stalin reserved that for himself.

President Contemplates Another Fishing Trip

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT told the press correspondents that he was planning another fishing trip and hoped to get away late in April. This time he is going after tarpon in the Gulf of Mexico, and he intends to go to New Orleans and there board the Presidential yacht Potomac for a cruise along the Texas coast.

Roosevelt Urges His Court Packing Plan

GUESTS at "victory dinners" all over the country heard President Roosevelt deliver at the feast in Washington a preliminary appeal to his party and the nation to support his plan to pack the Supreme court. He said that a crisis exists demanding immediate social and economic legislation to improve the lot of the common man and that there is no time to lose, lest a great calamity, such as a revolution or the advent of a dictatorship, be visited upon the country in the two or three years that might be necessary to remove the obstruction of the New Deal in the manner prescribed by existing law.

Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt let his hearers understand that he has no intention of seeking a third term in the White House.

Opponents of the President's judiciary program, especially those of his own party, were stirred to anger by his speech, denouncing it as an example of pharisaic demagoguery. Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska led the Democratic assault on the President's address with a radio speech in which he spoke with bitterness of "loose, misleading, unfounded and exaggerated charges against the Supreme court."

Conference on Sources of Raw Materials Opens

FIFTEEN nations were represented at the conference on the distribution of the sources of raw materials which opened in Geneva under the sponsorship of the League of Nations. The United States had a delegate, Henry F. Grady, and there was one present from Japan. But Germany was not represented and neither was Italy, both of which nations are demanding room to expand and new sources of raw materials. Brazil, which like America and Japan is outside the league, participated.

A League of Nations communique pointed out both Germany and Italy are in need of many essential materials including coal, petroleum, iron, copper, lead, zinc, tin, aluminum, nickel, sulphur, rubber, cotton, wool, silk, and other commodities.

"Freedom of the Seas" Is Abandoned by Senate

"FREEDOM of the seas" as an American policy was abandoned by the Senate when it passed, by a vote of 62 to 6, the resolution submitted by Senator Key Pittman on behalf of the foreign affairs committee continuing the President's present power to declare an embargo upon the shipment of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerent nations.

The measure also provides that the President may declare it unlawful for any American vessel or aircraft to carry to warring nations any articles whatsoever he may enumerate. However, foreign nations may purchase such articles, arms and munitions, and transport them to their own countries at their own risk. And the act will not apply to an American republic, such as a South American country, engaged in war against a non-American country provided that the American republic is not co-operating with a non-American state in such a war.

Senators Borah and Johnson fought valiantly against adoption of the resolution but when it came to a vote only four others supported them. They were Austin, Bridges, Gerry and Lodge.

Row Over La Guardia's Insult to Hitler

THERE was war between Mayor La Guardia of New York and Reichsfuehrer Hitler. The mayor, addressing a gathering of Jewish women, proposed that a "Hall of Horrors" be erected for the city's 1939 world fair which would include a figure of "that brown-shirted fanatic who is mankind's greatest enemy." Hitler himself made no rebuttal but Ambassador Luther was directed to protest to the State department. The Berlin press raged against La Guardia, one of the mildest names applied to him being "scoundrel super-Jew."

Secretary of State Hull expressed to the German embassy his regret that an American official should use language reflecting on the head of a friendly nation, but called attention to the right of free speech in this country. This didn't satisfy the German newspapers and the attack on La Guardia was renewed. In New York the mayor was praised by the Jews and criticized by citizens of German blood.

War Department Buys Six Autogiros for Army

OUR War department has finally decided that the autogiro is a good thing—long after European nations reached the same conclusion. Secretary Woodring announced that six autogiros had been purchased for military purposes at a cost of $238,432. They are the Kellett KDL wingless planes, which have a top speed of 125 miles, a minimum of 16 miles, a cruising speed of 103 miles, and a cruising range of 3½ hours, or 361 miles. The plane is powered with a Jacobs I-4 engine.

Roosevelt Aims, but Sit-Down Strikes Are Bad Headache; Some PWA Figures

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON — Although the Roosevelt administration would like to leave office having nailed to the statutes unquestioned federal authority to handle and settle labor-capital and employee-employer disputes, you will have an impossible time if you try to get anyone higher up in office than a doorknocker to talk to you about the so-called legality of sit-down strikes, which made it possible for John Lewis to put his union over on Alfred Sloan of General Motors. This administration which is pledged to labor, has done as much or more for labor than anyone else and will continue to do so—but this sit-down strike business. Ouch! What a headache!

When Miss Perkins, Secretary of Labor, permitted her emotions to carry her so far that she said right out loud and in public that sit-down strikes "might" be legal, the White House official staff nearly sank through the floor with embarrassment, because the sit-down strike, by which employees simply take away a factory or store, drive everyone else out and permit no one to work—is just about as legal as breaking into someone's house at night with a gun.

Miss Perkins, you see, is a long, long way ahead of most of us ordinary folks when it comes to matters affecting labor, and what she had in mind was that once upon a time, a long, long time ago, it was a crime for workmen to leave their country and go to another in search of work or better wages. It was a crime of conspiracy for workmen to organize for better wages. The whole story of labor organizations is one of long struggle for the right to bargain collectively; hence the advanced thinkers feel there is a philosophy of equity in the idea of a sit-down strike which some day will become an actual legal right. Defenders of the sit-down strike tell the sitters-down: "your job is your personal property." But the courts apparently seen on their way to issue writs and injunctions against the workers who take over a property and own it for the time being.

But the mass of Americans look on the sit-down strike as something too socialist, too European. The strike which has become legal and which the old time labor union men endorse is a stoppage of work, with the workers leaving their jobs. The sit-down strike is important nationally because it is used by the followers of that great figure in present day labor affairs, John Lewis, heading labor's committee for industrial organization. Lewis will go far unless he is cut down by fate or politics of some sort. Right now he is as much opposed by his conservative friends in the American Federation of Labor (the old line craft union guild) as he is by industrial magnates. So its a three cornered fight.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is as much opposed to the sit-down strike as he is opposed to the Tory industrial magnate. Green thinks the sit-down strike is Fascist in style and completely undemocratic.

The Roosevelt administration ought something to Lewis and his United Mine Workers as well as to the sympathetic group known as Labor's Non-Partisan League, which gave complete support in the reelection campaign.

But when you come to analyze that situation you find that Roosevelt had paid his debt in advance. Roosevelt, you recall, put a lot of vim and vigor in the Guaymas Coal bill which would have perpetuated a coal code in the bituminous fields, insuring good wages for miners and fair pay among distributors. It was a solution to a bad situation, endorsed by all the miners and at least half the operators, for it paid the men living wages and prevented cut-throat dealings in the industry. Unfortunately the Supreme court ruled it unconstitutional; but it was responsible for heavy union support of the New Deal in the reelection campaign. Hence, I say that Roosevelt has paid that debt in advance, and as President, Mr. Roosevelt certainly could not play the raw politics that some folks apparently expected of him when Lewis is tangled up with Alfred Sloan of General Motors in the preliminaries to the General Motors strike.

While these various sit-down strikes and other labor disturbances are scattered throughout the country, there is a strong interest in the situation here. The strikes point to the need for a strong, constitutional, federal hand that will guide labor and capital to settlements of disputes without these outbursts of near-civil war, riots, police, deputies, tear gas and what not. That is one objective the President has in mind in his improved democracy through an enlightened view of the Constitution.

At present, governors of the states where sit-down strikes occur have the troubles on their shoulders. Governor Murphy of Michigan who is credited here with success in his handling of the Flint strike, managed to get by without major bloodshed at least. He had most of the national guard of the state there; and had there been big trouble elsewhere in Michigan I don't know what would have occurred.

Other governors, though are more hard boiled about it than Murphy. Governor Cross of Connecticut serves notice that he is against sit-down strikes; none to be allowed to thrive while he is governor, he says. Governor Henry Homer of Illinois, a man of great humanity and sympathies and a former judge, declares there is no warrant in law justifying occupation of others' property in a sit-down strike. Hoffman of New Jersey is exceedingly hard-boiled in advance. These samples of governors' attitudes indicate a patchwork policy of handling these outbreaks.

There is certainly nothing but acute boredom here for the rather picayunish strikes that followed in the General Motors' wake. If labor organizers only knew it, there is a feeling here that the motor industry's workers were justified in asking for better wages and working conditions (regardless of the legality of their methods) but some of the small-time sit-down strikes elsewhere have turned into comedies. When Lewis engineered his motor strike he played an ace; but there is no reason to play an ace when a two-spot will do.

The sit-down strike has a mob aspect which can have destructive and dangerous results unless curbed. The original labor union idea was to organize skilled workers into small groups or "locals," which worked up toward the top of the organization pyramid, in democratic processes of delegates who spoke for their colleagues by means of elections. The new fangled union of an entire mass of workers hypnotized by a single leader may have its merits, but it also gives opportunity for professional agitators to weld a mob into a so-called union and "march on Washington." And these are just plain mobs led by professional organizers who collect what they can from half-starved, half-baked individuals who believe they are following a genuine leader; then the agitator will make a dicker with a bus company to carry a hundred or a thousand of these poor fellows to Washington—and the agitator gets a rake-off on the bus fare! By the time the march is over and its complete futility exposed, the exploited marchers have to find their way back home—in box cars or on foot. And yet the whole affair gives the ignorant public the idea that a "union" has demanded something.

Actually, nothing has happened except a professional organizer has made a few hundred dollars from men and women with nothing to spare. Also such things foment the type of destructive mass trouble which may sometime have to be handled severely.

It would take one man more than thirty million years to do all the work this administration's public works policy created with its four billion dollars to spend. Or, seven billion men could work for union wages for one hour, or three and a half million men could work a year for the money—the Public Works money that Harold Ickes, PWA administrator has had to spend under the new deal. The figures that the statistical sharks turn out on the PWA results are stupefying. This statement I make is the result of figures of forty-five months of "Honest Harold" Ickes' administration of the policy adopted early in the New Deal to combine a public need for employment at the time of the depression.

If, some day, there is a Department of Public Works under which all such projects are planned and administered, the general taxpayering public may view their government's doings without being confused. Just now the average American does not know that the Army, the Navy, the Treasury, the Relief administration and the Public Works administration are spending and building—in addition to possibly a hundred other functions of government which require buildings and let contracts to contractors. If there is any one thing the Public Works administration under Ickes has done it is to demonstrate that four billions can be spent honestly and efficiently. Other branches of government are honest and efficient too, but for the first time in the memory of many of us, public money by the carload has been scattered about under a brand new administration of a brand new man in national public life—without some sort of real or alleged scandal.

Through Ickes this four billion has flowed into water systems, electric light systems, schools, hospitals, streets, roads, huge dams, bridges, housing, ships, railroads and the electrification thereof. In one railroad shop alone, 7,000 all steel cars were built with PWA money borrowed by the concern—to be paid back with interest. Railroads would have flopped or fallen apart from rust (figuratively speaking) had it not been for $200,000,000 of this PWA fund loaned them so that they could employ men for their needs. Rails were replaced, track beds realigned, whole new trains built, and all this brought men back to work after long lay-offs. Much of the streamlining of trains is PWA stuff.

How Many Pennies Your Child's Life?

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first. All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Sentinel of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging headaches, persistent backache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Doan's Sold at all drug stores.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

People complained about the heat of last summer, and yet they insist on keeping their houses at a high temperature throughout the winter. Living in overheated rooms is debilitating, reduces vitality and resistance to infection, and opens the way for colds and pneumonia.

Beekeepers, whether beginners or old timers, will find a lot of good information in the new beekeeping circular of Prof. W. A. Price, state entomologist. Ask a county or home agent for a copy, or write to the college of agriculture, Lexington, for circular 288, "Beekeeping in Kentucky."

"Pigs in Blanket" recipe: Select large, fine oysters. Wrap each in a strip of bacon and fasten with a toothpick. Place in the oven until the bacon is crisp and brown.

Many farmers cooperating in the agricultural conservation program are planning to sow alfalfa this spring. A good practice is to broadcast or drill 300 to 400 pounds of superphosphate, spread two tons of manure per acre and 12 pounds of alfalfa seed to the acre.

Horses and mules advanced in price last year, and are expected to be higher still this year. Cost of production is increasing, but is not equal to the disappearance of wild animals. The use of tractors is increasing.

Money is valued only for what it will buy, new or old. Many things on the market are right in themselves, but the people who buy them won't add one iota to long term happiness or satisfaction. A good rule for spending is to buy only those things that make for a more effective life.

Accounts Help Stretch Finances
After a person gets away with a lot of things that are not his, he is not a good man. For instance, a boy can drink his glass of milk and then be completely, adorably amazed because the milk is all gone. He has it, he drank it; now it just isn't there any more. Suppose the situation is changed, however. A housewife has means by which she may keep her family expenses, saving the money with surprising quickness. The money is gone! She had it; she spent it; now it definitely isn't there any more. The baby can, in a sense, do the same with it; the whole family, too. If the family money is handled wisely.

Since most people have limited means, good money management depends upon deciding what it is most desirable to buy, according to the home economics department of the university of Kentucky college of agriculture. Many things are attractive, but money would have to be spent for them and they would not make for more effective living. If some things have to be eliminated it is worth while to plan in advance what these things will be; otherwise, the money might go rapidly for non-essentials.

Admitting all this, how can one start planning? The best means is to keep accounts. This serves four purposes: it keeps a record of all money received and paid out; it gives a means of comparing the expenditures for various items; it makes it possible to detect waste easily; and it may serve as a basis for better planning, preferably by the year.

A 10 cent blank book, with properly kept accounts, may make possible good food, a radio, schooling, labor-saving kitchen or other household equipment, and other things that make for year-round family happiness.

TENANT FARMERS ASSISTED

The president's recent tenancy message and legislation now before congress indicate a concerted drive to solve the problems of farm tenancy and bring aid to thousands of farmers at the "bottom of the agricultural ladder," states F. H. Byars, rural rehabilitation supervisor for the resettlement administration in Morgan county.

The helping hand of the federal government already has been extended to many tenant farmers thru the rural rehabilitation program. Mr. Byars said. Of the 158 families who have received rehabilitation loans in Morgan county, approximately 40 have been tenants.

"An important beginning in the movement to reduce the prevalence of farm tenancy and in providing greater opportunity for farm ownership for tenants has been made thru this rehabilitation work," Mr. Byars declared. "It is recognized that the farm and home supervision given in connection with the rehabilitation loans, along with farm debt adjustment and cooperative services, will go far toward helping thousands of farmers take the important upward step from tenancy to farm ownership."

"The latest agricultural census figures show there are 980 tenant families in Morgan county and that 31 percent of all farms in Morgan county are operated by tenants."

Rehabilitation loans and debt adjustment for Morgan county's distressed farm families are playing an important part in halting the rapid increase in number of tenant farms, according to Mr. Byars.

A large number of the 158 farm families under the rehabilitation program in the county are progressing toward full ownership of their farms thru the aid of a farm plan, loan and debt adjustment. Restoring these farms to a productive basis enables continuance of purchase contracts and gradual liquidation of mortgaged indebtedness.

While over one third of the rehabilitation families in the county are on a cash rental, lease, or share crop basis, the assistance being provided thru rehabilitation is laying the foundation for placing tenant farmers on a self sustaining basis. This constitutes the first step up the ladder to farm ownership.

New opportunities for the 40 tenant farmers reported in Morgan county in the latest agricultural census to start the climb toward ownership are expected to result from tenancy legislation now before congress.

Seriousness of the tenancy situation in the nation as a whole is seen in the fact that less than half of the farmers own the farms they operate and tenant farms are increasing at the rate of about 40,000 a year.

Farmers Hit by Flood

A survey made by county agents, home demonstration agents, and local committees shows that 21,661 Kentucky farmers suffered losses in the flood, according to a summary of the figures issued by the university of Kentucky college of agriculture. Reports were received from 71 counties directly hit by flood, and 39 non-flood counties.

The number of farm homes destroyed is placed at 1,458, valued at $1,091,900, while 5,108 other farm buildings were washed away or totally wrecked, valued at $629,955. Farm homes damaged are estimated at 8,139, their damage being placed at $1,252,410, with 14,239 other farm buildings damaged to the extent of $773,520. Nearly half of a million dollars was lost in farm machinery and equipment.

Cattle lost in the flood numbered 7,378; hogs, 15,188; horses and mules, 1,564; sheep, 1,391; and chickens, 94,562.

Corn destroyed is estimated at 1,179,085 bushels; hay at 37,498 tons, and other feeds at 190,033 tons. Small grain, including that used for pasture, destroyed or seriously damaged, is placed at 128,583 acres.

Losses to other farm property are estimated at a total of $1,468,591. Excessive erosion occurred on 1,469,575 acres, and silt and gravel were deposited on 244,700 acres.

As a result of the great losses from the flood, a total of 8,023 farmers will need loans totaling $1,747,250, the report says.

Called for Training

Charles Lee Dunn of Stacy Fork has been ordered to report to the navy recruiting station at Louisville on March 23 for enlistment in the U. S. navy.

After being accepted for enlistment, recruits will be sent to the U. S. navy training station at Norfolk, Virginia, where they will undergo intensive training for three months. Upon completion of this training, they are sent either to one of the various trade schools for further training or direct to sea on one of our many warships.

Manure, Straw, Needed by Soil

Careful Return of Manure Is an Aid to Land That Needs Potash.

By L. B. Miller, Associate in Soil Experiment Fields, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Careful return of manure and straw to fields provides a "soil security program" for those lands that are on the verge of a potash deficiency. In the growing of corn and grain crops, fully two-thirds of the potash content is in the corn-stalk and straw. If these by-products of the farm are left on the land or are applied as manure, they return some potash to the "soil bank" to be used again.

A study of crop yield data over a 20-year period on six soil experimental farms on the gray soils shows that yield levels were as high with manure as with potash, basic treatments of limestone and phosphate having been used in each case. The manure was applied at the rate at which with careful management it could be accumulated on any live stock farm.

For the farmer who markets his crops as grain, the problem is somewhat different. At one soil experiment field the corn yields on limed gray silt loam on tight clay for the rotation ending in 1928 were 28 bushels. Since that time yields have declined to 21 bushels.

This decline appears to be caused by potash deficiency for, with the application of oats straw at the rate of two tons an acre for each four-year rotation since 1929, the corn yields have been revived to an average of 45 bushels for the last four-year period. This treatment seems also to have satisfied the potash needs of other crops in the rotation. Analysis of the straw showed that each two-ton application contained about as much potassium as is supplied by 110 pounds of muriate of potash.

After limestone and clovers have boosted crop yields above sub-marginal levels, farmers will do well to watch for potash deficiency. Not that legume farming is a broader of potash shortage in the soil, but as yields go up, greater demands are made upon soil minerals. When crop growth is sufficient to exhaust the supply of any one of the plant nutrients, the crop is handicapped.

A minimum acreage of soil-depleting crops such as corn and soy beans, together with the return of manure and straw, will go a long way toward making farms self-sufficient in their potash requirements.

Sash Greenhouses Make Plant Growing Less Work

Sash greenhouses have so many advantages over hot beds for growing plants from seed that every commercial vegetable grower should have one, believes C. H. Nisley, extension professor of vegetable growing at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university.

In sash greenhouses, which are usually heated by a wood stove or with a hot water system, seed sowing and transplanting may be done in comfort, even during extremely cold weather, and watering and ventilating are easier because of the larger air space under the glass. Last winter many of these structures were built. Some of them are located in the garage. With this arrangement, the heat is furnished to the garage and to the washing and packing house as well as to the greenhouse.

These structures are not expensive to build. An 18-sash greenhouse complete with boiler and head house, new sash and new materials should cost less than $300, not counting labor. Where sash is on hand, there may be no need of buying new. Instead of purchasing a new boiler, a good second hand one, purchased at a low price, may be used. For permanent structures, a concrete or hollow tile foundation and walls are recommended. Wooden sides may also be used if lumber is available.

In the Feed Lot

Dairymen who make the highest income from their herds plan their business so that the volume of milk production is maintained in winter months when prices are normally best.

An annual farm inventory will show a farmer just where he stands financially whether he is gaining or losing, and how much. The inventory also provides a valuable property list in case of fire.

A cemetery for cows on Langwater farm near North Easton, Mass., stands as a monument to some of the greatest dairy cows ever bred.

About 2½ million farmers are now marketing some or all of their farm products co-operatively through their 8,400 associations.

Horses free from parasites breed better, work better, are easier to handle and require less feed to keep them in good condition.

The locust makes good fence posts and, being a legume, improves the soil. It grows well on almost any type of soil.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

"No man succeeds in the foreign mission field who has been unfaithful to his seminary duties." That is what an outstanding missionary said. In other words, if a student in college is untrue to his college trust, he will be untrue to his missionary trust. What we are in maturer years depends upon the foundation we lay when we are young. If a building is to be permanent it must have the right kind of foundation. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." If young people in our schools and colleges build their lives as many of them are doing on the wrong foundation, there will be moral crashes in coming years. No man ever fell suddenly. Back of every tragedy in character there is a long, slow, silent process of preparation. Men who do the heroic thing in the time of crisis were prepared by early training for the hour of their heroism.

We are not to judge by the above paragraph that teaching is all that is necessary in the development of character. Nicodemus called Jesus a Great Teacher. Jesus said in substance, "You need a life giver." It is impossible to teach people who are not teachable. Spiritual truths cannot be taught to people who are not spiritual. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." That is the teaching of God's word. Men must be born again before they can be taught spiritual truths. We may drill into youth the idea of self control, and, of course, that is good, but no process of teaching can drill spiritual life into the heart of a person. "By grace are we saved thru faith and that not of ourselves, it is the gift of God." The Bible says that some people are babies in Christ. They have to have milk. Other Christians who are more mature can eat meat. Christian growth is important, but there must be life before there is growth.

MORGAN COUNTY SCHOOL PAGE

(Under Auspices of Ova O. Haney, County Supt.)

WEST LIBERTY SCHOOL NEWS

The senior dramatic club has started work on a play, "This Is the Life," a highly entertaining comedy-drama which offers a chance for the club to portray a variety of characters. They hope to produce the play on April 2. The cast is as follows:

Sadie Williams — Ella Ruth Childers
Katie Clark — Margaret Nickell
Melissa Lander — Virginia Nickell
Julie — Martha Fannin
Etta Bingham — Telah Friend
Mrs. Bushy — Dixie Caudill
Martha Ralston — Viva Bowles
Oscar Ralston — Avery Elam
Florida Wilitski — Dwayne Bellamy
Harold Carter — Willard Harper
Senor Olivera — Billy Keeton
Little Pine — Jack Cochran
Sam Hinda — Joe Caudill

Jessie Tyree's name was omitted from the honor roll last week. Due to illness, some of her work was incomplete at the time.

Parker May is very ill and is absent from school.

James Cottle has whooping cough and is absent from school.

Homer Rose is ill with pneumonia.

The interclass basketball tournament is progressing nicely. Monday the seventh grade overcame the freshmen in an easy victory. Tuesday the seniors lost to the juniors 19-18. The sophomores will play the victorious juniors on Wednesday, and the seventh grade will play the eighth grade Thursday. The final game will be played Friday at free activity period.

The school is proud of Jack Cochran's record at the regional tournament. Jack was awarded the medal for being the most valuable player to his team. He made 13 points against Inez, the winner of the tournament. The entire team has shown good work and good sportsmanship all season. We are justly proud of each boy.

French Club

The French club held its regular meeting Friday afternoon. Gertrude Ratliff acted as president, as both the president and the vice president were absent.

After the meeting was called to order and the business discussed, the club sang some French songs. Two interesting talks were given by Delphia McClure and Martha Fannin. Then there was a spelling battle, followed by refreshments served by Margaret Nickell, Helen Stacy, and Frieda Cox.

P.T.A. MEETS

The Parent-Teachers association was held in the new auditorium Monday night, March 8, with the president, Mrs. C. K. Stacy, in the chair and the secretary, Mrs. Nancy Turner, and treasurer, Mrs. Golden Nickell, both present.

The meeting opened by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Rev. Harlen Murphy read from the fifth chapter of Matthew and offered prayer.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer reported $282.76 in the bank.

Supt. Haney stated that the curtains and sound equipment, including radios for each room, loud speaker, etc., cost about $700. After some discussion, the association voted to be responsible for the balance due, $400 or more.

The president expressed in appropriate words the community's appreciation of Supt. Haney's effort and success in getting the new school building as a WPA project and his vigilance in trying to get means to provide all the necessary equipment for a modern educational plant. She called for some appropriate expression of this appreciation by the association. The secretary then passed a few copies of a little poem she had composed. The entire body arose and sang the following words to the tune of America:

Oh, Haney, 'tis to thee
Our hearts should grateful be
For this glad night.
Long shall we hail your name
As one of greatest fame.
To you a monument
This building stands.

The vote was taken for the number of parents representing the different rooms, which resulted in favor of the following teachers: Mrs. Edna Burton, Miss Nell Taulbee, Wendell Nickell, and Miss Maureen McClure.

The officers for the next school year will be elected at the April meeting. The following nominating committee was elected: Mrs. R. A. Baldwin, Mrs. J. B. Nickell, Mrs. O. B. Arnett, W. O. Pelfrey, and Mrs. J. D. Moore.

Miss Lena McClure had charge of the program, which was given as published in the paper. It was very entertaining and unusually well prepared. The readings by pupils of the different grades all deserve special mention.

TEACHERS

The world is full of many things which in themselves do not appear highly important. But any one of these things may lift some individual above the beast of the fields and the fowls of the air into a realm of intelligence, goodness, and beauty. All these things make the difference between civilization and barbarism. If man still ground corn in a stone mortar, or served meat raw, he would be doing something needful and perhaps competent, in a way, yet no highly intelligent person would be happy in this condition. It is a multitude of ideas and hundreds of activities and varieties of things which make our civilization rich and colorful. Some of these things may be useless if not actually harmful, but who is genius enough to separate the good and the bad? Certainly it takes a most wonderful person who is able to make all these decisions absolutely correct. In all these things of human concern, to enlarge knowledge, to train the hand, to entertain, to amuse, and to strengthen men and women for the life they must live, the TEACHER is the one person in all the activities who has this opportunity. The quality of schools is always in proportion to the quality of the teachers. The teacher must study, must keep an open mind, and must know his students.

Any state or nation that expects to build wisely, intelligently, and permanently for its future must build upon a carefully planned program that is the result of much study and training. The educators of Kentucky are interested in a program that will bring opportunity to all the people in all the homes. Morgan county is a part of a great commonwealth, and if she plays her part in the future it will be done by her children of today. Education does not bear immediately when planned, but just as any other plant it must grow and develop and bring forth harvest.

REPORT OF NURSERY SCHOOL March 8-12

Our attendance and enrollment has increased this week. We now have 48 enrolled. The two new ones this week are Willie and Ernest Ray Pennington. Bobby and Jimmie McKenzie have moved to a farm down on the river and have not attended this week. We hope that arrangements can be made so they can come on the school bus and reenter school.

Farrel Fannin has reentered school, having been out because of the weather and illness.

Mary Louise Elam is out on account of illness.

When any of the children have a birthday, we have a special dinner in their honor. This week Jimmie Melvin Haney was four years old, and we had the special birthday dinner and cake and his mother, Mrs. Haney, was our guest.

We are glad to have some NYA help which has been assigned to us by the supervisor, James Perry. Jeannette Neal was our helping NYA worker this week. Isel Davis will be the NYA help next week.

Mrs. Myrl Fannin has been assigned by the Paintsville WPA office to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Clarice Lacy. Mrs. Fannin has taught four years and has been a student in Morehead state teachers' college and cuttucky Wesleyan, and a graduate of the Morehead state normal school, 1930.

NOVA MOTLEY, Head Teacher.

WRIGLEY GRADES CLOSED

All the grades of the Wrigley school were out Tuesday, March 16.

Children who were on the honor roll in Miss Lemaster's room were: fourth grade, Demere Bailey, Lobertha Ratliff, Loletta Ratliff, Lexie Adkins, and Esma Howard; third grade, Suda Adkins.

Children and parents all like Miss Lemaster as a teacher and wish her much success in work.

Pupils on the honor roll in Mrs. Whitt's room were: fifth grade, Fern Howard, Roberta Lewis, and Maye Bailey; sixth grade, Ernestine Lewis, Pauline Fannin, Leah Adkins, Don Reda Lewis, and Jean Clegg.

The children in Mrs. Whitt's room gave a good program the last day. They also gave Mrs. Whitt a share party. They were very sorry to have to part with their teacher. Many tears were shed. They all did splendid work.

Lecture on Physical Education

Fortunate, indeed, are we to have with us next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock Dr. Rexford C. Quimby, director of physical education of Berea college, who will discuss authoritatively the subject of physical education. His emphasis will be on posture and body mechanics.

Dr. Quimby came to Berea about 12 years ago and started a physical education program which grew by leaps and bounds and is now unsurpassed anywhere in the south. He began his program under adverse conditions. The idea was new there, as in most southern colleges, and destructive critics asked, "What good will it do to be able to turn flips and play basketball?" or "How will learning to stand straight and walk with grace and ease, make one a better banker or lawyer?" The old tubercule, almost like a big barn with a couple of coal stoves in the corners, was used for the gym. The gym equipment consisted of a few ragged mats, a horse, a parallel bar, and a few dumbbells scattered around.

Diligently and earnestly Dr. Quimby began his physical education program. He took some of the more athletically minded students and made them student instructors, whom he taught to direct the class in disciplinary commands, in tumbling, in apparatus work, in class games, and, most important, in posture work. This plan he has continued to carry out and now he has about twenty-five student instructors under his direction.

In four years Dr. Quimby convinced those connected with the college that without a physical education program Berea college could never be complete. Consequently the next building added to Berea was a new $150,000 gymnasium, donated by Charles W. Seabury. From one of the worst gyms in the south to one of the best Dr. Quimby moved his work. And with this new, adequately equipped building, his program jumped accordingly. Swimming, marching, tumbling, bar work, folk dancing, speedball, basketball, baseball, handball, tennis, boxing, wrestling, and posture are part of his directed program.

What is the need of standing up straight and training our abdominal organs to function properly? This last would be easily answered if we lived in the time of the cave man—self-preservation. But we are living in a lawful age and a machine age. We may be unable even to move because of sickness, but the law will protect us from some one pouncing down upon us and killing us. If we get sick we are carried by automobiles to hospitals, and there trained physicians will probably cure us with their skill and their delicate instruments. Aside from the suffering caused by sickness, there is another reason that we need to be healthy which is still more important. In order to accomplish intellectually what we should like to, we must first take all strain and unnecessary pressure from our hearts, lungs, liver, kidneys, and intestines, and give them a chance to function with the least possible hindrance. This can be done only thru intelligent and persistent posture exercises.

There is another point which I wish to briefly mention in regard to the desirability of a good posture. Does it make any difference to us when we see some one walking along with shoulders pulled round, chest sunken in, and lower abdomen sagging? From his appearance, don't you gather that there must be something wrong with this individual—either sickness or carelessness? On the other hand let's look at another person walking with an ease and grace that can come only when the chest is up, shoulders straight, but not stiff, and abdomen flat. It does make a difference how they look to us, doesn't it?

I have merely mentioned some of the things which Dr. Quimby will discuss more fully and more adequately, with the use of slides, in his next Tuesday night to a greater advantage than to come out to the new auditorium at 7 o'clock and hear this lecture.

My physical education program for the remainder of the year will be in part a follow-up of Dr. Quimby's lecture. The first fifteen minutes of each gym class will be spent on posture exercises. The rest of the period will be used for mat work, volleyball, tennis, or softball.

DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

On March 5 and 6 the district basketball tournament was held in the new high school gymnasium at West Liberty. The following teams participated: West Liberty, Ezel, Frenchburg, Crockett, Cannel City, Royalton, and Salyersville.

In the first round, West Liberty defeated Royalton by the score of 23-14. West Liberty was leading at the half 9-3. Previous to the tournament Royalton had defeated West Liberty in the Salyersville gym 28-21, but lost to the local boys in the West Liberty gym 34-30 in four overtime periods. Basketball fans who had seen both teams play during the regular season conceded West Liberty a small chance to win.

In the second round of the tournament, Crockett defeated Ezel 21-12. Both of these teams are denied the use of gyms and have been forced to practice on dirt courts. Considering the conditions under which these teams played during the year, they played good ball.

At 8 p.m. in the second round, Cannel City and Frenchburg, champion and runner up in the 3-M conference, met. At the half Cannel City was leading 14-11. Beginning the second half, Frenchburg came back on the floor with renewed determination and won by 33-22. During the regular season, Cannel City defeated Frenchburg twice, both times by decisive scores.

In the semi-finals, Salyersville, who drew a bye, met West Liberty, winner of the Royalton game. West Liberty was conceded little chance to win. Due to size and experience, Salyersville appeared to be superior to the local team. Having been defeated twice during the season by decisive scores, the West Liberty team was out for revenge. At the half Salyersville was leading 14-11. During the rest period Coach Gardner told the boys something that added renewed courage and "fight." When the whistle blew at the close of the regular playing period, the scoreboard read West Liberty 22, Salyersville 22. At the beginning of the overtime period Salyersville score, making the score 24-22 in their favor. Keeton of West Liberty sank a goal from near the foul line to tie the score 24-24. With less than a minute to play, Keeton was fouled and sank the free throw to put West Liberty in the lead 25-24. Royalton; Williams, Frenchburg;

With only 40 seconds remaining, Salyersville was unable to score. Therefore West Liberty eked out a 25-24 victory.

In the semi-finals, Frenchburg coasted to a 28-14 victory over Crockett. Coach Wiley substituted freely during the game, thereby saving the "best" to use against West Liberty in the finals.

At 8 p.m., Saturday, March 6, West Liberty and Frenchburg met to determine the championship. Due to the fact that West Liberty had played Salyersville at 2 p.m. the same day, the players were hardly in condition to cope with the strong Frenchburg team. Anyway the boys fought a clean, hard fight, but lost 28-14.

Referees for the tournament were Taylor and Combs of Kentucky Wesleyan college, Winchester. The official timekeeper was Carl Elam; official scorer Lockwood Elam.

We believe that the tournament was a success in all respects. Gate receipts amounted to $427. The ladies of the P.T.A. sold sandwiches and cold drinks and realized a profit of $35.

Good sportsmanship was demonstrated at all times during the tournament. Much credit should be given to Coach Gardner for the way in which he as tournament manager conducted the tournament.

We wish to thank all persons who helped to make the tournament a success.

At the close of the championship game, County Supt. Ova O. Haney presented the winners and runners up with beautiful trophies. Cannel City won the sportsmanship trophy. Coach Arnett of the Salyersville team presented Carl Burton, coach of the Cannel City team, with a nice trophy as a result of her having been winner in the 3-M conference.

Other tournament awards were as follows:

Gold basketballs to the first five all-tournament men: Cochran, West Liberty; Beckett, Frenchburg; Snapp, Frenchburg; Lacy, Cannel City; and Lyons, Salyersville.

Silver basketballs to the second five all-tournament men: Keeton, West Liberty; Patrick, Cannel City; Zornes, Cannel City; Gillum, Salyersville; and Jones, Royalton.

Honorable mention to Little, West Liberty; Walters, Cannel City; Mann, Royalton; Williams, Frenchburg;

COCHRAN WINS HONORS

West Liberty's hopes for going past the first round of the regional tournament were blasted when the boys, who paired West Liberty with Inez, who was twice semi-finalist in the state tournament and a strong contender for the state championship this year. This contest ended 52 to 21 in favor of Inez. West Liberty fought hard thruout the game, and at times rather brilliantly, but they were no match for the seasoned Inez team. One point might be noted, however: West Liberty made more points off Inez than did any other team in the regional tournament.

Perhaps the outstanding player of the tournament was Jack Cochran, who scored 13 points with Williamson, Inez' best guard, on him Jack was not only shooting well, but he was faking and guarding to the extent of almost bewildering the Inez boys at times. Billy Keeton played a good floor game, intercepting passes and "setting up" Jack for a one hand shot down the side line.

No happier a person is than Jack West Liberty than Jack Cochran. He is rightly so. Not only did he score a gold basketball representing his team, making the all-tournament team, but he also won a beautiful trophy for being the most valuable man on his team.

Y.G.A. ORGANIZED

Index, Ky.—The "Young Girls Auxiliary," a club recently organized by the young girls of our community, is proving a successful and a most interesting affair. The purpose of the club is to develop the social and beneficial interests to a higher capacity, and to encourage the abilities of our young folk. Our watchword is to help. We are always ready to render our services to just causes. We have already begun to detect the enthusiasm, interest, and cooperation of our members. To perpetuate and hold this interest we are planning a lot of social events for the future.

Officers were elected as follows: president, Thelma Elam; vice president, Edna Elam; secretary, Christine Ferguson; treasurer, Gertrude Ferguson; visiting committee, Verda Long and Geneva Meadows; social editor, Hazel J. Elam.

The club met in the home of Mrs. N. V. Elam on Saturday afternoon. The following program was carried out nicely:

Club song —Members
Bible reading —Verda Long
Minutes —Christine Ferguson
Reading, "Gone" —Aileen Cox
Heard 'round the corner column —Naomi Meadows
Song, "Rhythm is our business" —Betty Elam

The girls spent the remainder of the hour in sewing and free discussion of the club. Refreshments were served by the hostess and the club adjourned at 4 o'clock.

Special Education Spelling Contest

Stacy Fork.—The WPA special education class met Monday night for a spelling contest in addition to regular class. The teacher had promised a prize to the one who was standing when a certain book was spelled thru, but when it was all over there were three standing, which looked bad for the teacher's pocketbook, but the three received prizes. They were Ethel Stacy, Julia Blevins, and Buford Blevins. This class is doing fine work.

GRACE WOODS, Teacher
Mann, Frenchburg; Vanderpool, Salyersville; Ferguson, Crockett; Hutcherson, Crockett; Ward, Ezel.
Runner up trophy, West Liberty.
Winner's trophy, Frenchburg.

QUAIL LIBERATED

We received and liberated a large number of quail supplied by the game department. The distribution was as fair and impartial as was humanly possible.

We wish to thank our friends who last year left a small patch of sorghum standing on their farm. The quail and other birds had the opportunity to feed thereby safeguarding them in case of a severe winter. Thanks a million.

While hunting for fall I noticed where one had been planted to corn, and in between the places that are supposed to be corn. That has the appearance of the corn good judgment for.

Next Saturday night the Game Club will meet at the Hotel's room. Every member is invited to attend these meetings. We are now, that you are so busy, now.

GEO. S. COCHRAN, Secretary.

REGIONAL TOURNAMENT

At a meeting of the West Liberty basketball team, the following were elected to the regional tournament: West Liberty, Inez, Frenchburg, and Williamson. The tournament will be held at the Inez gymnasium. West Liberty was paired with Inez, who was twice semi-finalist in the state tournament and a strong contender for the state championship this year. This contest ended 52 to 21 in favor of Inez. West Liberty fought hard thruout the game, and at times rather brilliantly, but they were no match for the seasoned Inez team. LIBERTY ROAD

Mrs. M. M. Elam, president of the Liberty Road, has been elected to the position of president of the Liberty Road. She was elected by a large majority. The Liberty Road is a club of women who are interested in the improvement of the road. They are always ready to render their services to just causes. We have already begun to detect the enthusiasm, interest, and cooperation of our members. To perpetuate and hold this interest we are planning a lot of social events for the future.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Twilight of Knee Pants.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF. — Since our diplomatic group must shed the half-portion breeches they've been wearing at official functions abroad, that means others present will quit mistaking them for footmen and start in again mistaking them for waiters, as formerly.

But the under-rigging doesn't make so much difference anyhow. In the best penitentiary circles, it's the top dressing that counts — the gold-plated cocked hat; the dress coat loaded with bullion; the bosom crossed with broad ribbons; the lapels and the throat laced so decorated with medals that, alongside one thus costumed, Solomon in all his glory would look absolutely nude.

Irvin S. Cobb

End of the Holdout Season.

THE baseball season couldn't start off properly unless a certain catastrophe impended beforehand. Every self-respecting player who made a hit last year insists on more salary for this year, else he'll never spit in the palm of another glove. This makes him a holdout. The manager declares the player will take what's offered him and not a cent more. This makes him a manager.

But fear not, little one. They'll all be there when the governor or the mayor or somebody winds up to launch the first game and tosses the ball nearly eighteen feet in the general direction of the continent of North America.

Changing Style Capitals.

HOLLYWOOD and not Paris is now the world center for fashions, if you can believe Hollywood—and not Paris.

At any rate, both for men and women, we do originate many style creations which, in the best movie circles, frequently make the women look mannish and the men look effeminate, maybe that's the desired effect; an oldtimer wouldn't know about that.

However, there's a new hat out here for masculine wear which fascinates me. It is a very woolly hat—a nap on it like an old family album—and the crown peaks up in a most winsome way, and there's a rakish bunch of tail-feathers at the back which makes it look as though it might settle down any minute and start laying. I think they got the idea for it from the duck-billed platypus.

Civilizing Ethiopia.

CONQUERED Ethiopians attempt to assassinate their new overlord, Viceroy Graziani. Nobody is killed, but several individuals get bungled up.

So the conquerors arrest all natives of Addis Ababa in whose huts weapons are found. They round up 2,000 "suspects" out of a total population of 90,000.

So promptly 1,800 of these black prisoners are put to death in batches. In former days the firing squads would have worn themselves to a frazzle in a rush job of this sort, but no—well, who would deny that the machine gun is the crowning achievement of white culture? Poison gas is also much favored for pacifying rebellious savages, and plane-bombing likewise has its advocates.

The Public's Short Memory.

A FINANCIER, whose exposed devices are as a bad smell in people's nostrils, summarily is ousted from his high place and the shadows swallow up his diminished shape. A little time passes, and, lo, in a new setting, he bobs up, an envied if not an exalted personage. So-called exclusive groups welcome him in; newspapers quote him on this and that; he basks again, like some sleek and overfed lizard, in the sunshine of folks' tolerance—yes, the admiration of some.

No evidence that he has repented of his former practices; no sign of intent to repay any broken victim of those fiduciary operations. The private fortune which he took with him when he quit is still all his. And maybe there's the secret of this magical restoration to the favor of the multitude.

Budapest Catacombs

The Budapest catacombs date back to the days when the Fort of Buda was held by the Turks, marking the farthest fortified advance of the forces of Islam into Christendom. They were probably intended as avenues of escape for a beleaguered garrison, but they also have fresh water wells in them, and some of the chambers were used as repositories for great numbers of human skulls and bones, as in the case of the catacombs at Rome.

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

THE biggest sensation of the year in motion pictures is the success of Ritz Brothers, those three wild-eyed comics who rush into "On the Avenue" like a tornado and break up the show. They work with such whirlwind speed that in a stunt lasting only three to five minutes on the screen, they use up more genuinely comic material than most comedians develop in a lifetime. So, having made three pictures in their first five months on the screen, the boys have gone off to Miami.

Expert dancers have about the Ritz Brothers' dancing; singers are sure that they must have had operatic training; actors suspect that they played in stock for years to develop the lightning-like flash of their line delivery. But according to Harry Ritz himself—he's the hardest working one in all their sketches—they have never had a dancing or singing or elocution lesson in their lives.

For days Joan Bennett had all of her friends in a perfect fever of excitement while she made up her mind about going to New York for a stage engagement. Back in New York Margaret Sullivan had announced that she was going to withdraw from the cast of "Stage Door," because she is going to play a mother role in real life soon. The producer thought it would be a grand idea to get Joan to take over her part. She was quite interested, and Walter Wanger, to whom she is under contract, said he was willing to let her go. But that wily Walter Wanger showed Joan the costume sketches for "Vogues of 1937" and that settled it.

If you have been wondering what Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer so long popular on the radio, has been up to, you'll soon see for yourselves. In "Backstage," a picture he recently made in London, he plays opposite Anna Neagle, the Gaumont-British star. Tillie Losch is in it too, the exquisite dancer whose hands writhed so seductively in "Garden of Allah."

Clark Gable, who thinks that Robert Taylor is a great romantic actor, and Robert Taylor, who thinks that Clark Gable is tops, have persuaded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to let them make a picture together. The story selected is "Spurs of Pride," a military story by Percival Wren.

There is a serious shortage of beautiful chorus girls in Hollywood right now, because all the studios are making big musicals. Girls who could not even get a few days extra while the studios were all busy on dramatic pictures, are now signing ten-week contracts calling for as much as $200 a week. Samuel Goldwyn's chief complaint about the beautiful girls who come to Hollywood seeking work is that they invariably try to look like some popular star, instead of being beautiful in their own way. The one sure way not to get an engagement in one of his pictures is to have someone tell him that you look just like Virginia Bruce, or Carole Lombard.

When Kathryn Witwer, popular MBS prima donna, first came to Chicago to win fame and fortune, she had exactly $5 in her purse and some secretarial training which she traded for music lessons. First prize in a National Music Clubs federation contest won her a chance to appear with Fredrick Stock and also with Mary Garden at the Chicago Civic Opera. After her successful opera debut her home town of Gary, Ind., sent her to Europe for further study.

ODDS AND ENDS—Marlene Dietrich has confided to a few close friends, who told several thousand other people, that Mervyn LeRoy is going to marry Brian Aherne soon in London. Remember the love scenes in "Beloved Enemy"? Evidently they weren't just acting. . . . Ed Bergen, the ventriloquist who has made such an outstanding success on the Valley hour, has been put under contract to make pictures for Warner Brothers. . . . Barbara Stanwyck has a huge new ruby ring, a gift from Robert Taylor. Incidentally, when handed her check for five thousand dollars for a three-minute sketch on the radio recently, Barbara got the giggles. She suddenly recalled that just twelve years ago she was mightily pleased to get a night club job at thirty-five dollars a week.

BEST HE COULD DO

A vast cloud of smoke and big tongues of flame began to issue from the windows of a house. A man ran over to it and pressed the electric bell. The door was opened by a woman who suffered from deafness.

"Mad, your house is on fire!" exclaimed the man.

"What's that?"

"Your house is on fire!" he repeated.

"What's that? House on fire? Oh, is that all?"

"Well," replied the man, aghast, "that is all I can think of at the moment."

Supper for a Snake

A teacher had dwelt with wearisome irritation on the part played by carbohydrates, proteins, and fats respectively in the upkeep of the human body. At the end of the lesson the usual test questions were put.

"Can any girl tell me the three foods required to keep the body in health?" was the first one.

There was silence till one girl replied: "Breakfast, dinner and tea!"

His Suggestion

"What war that I saw yer boy Mike carryin' yesterday?" asked Mr. Dolan.

"That," answered Mr. Rafferty, "was his golf outfit. What do vez think iv it?"

"Well it struck me at the time that all it wanted was a pick an' shovel to be a fine kit o' tools."

Grow a Few Uncommon Vegetables This Year

U. S. Department of Agriculture Lists 2,000 Different Varieties

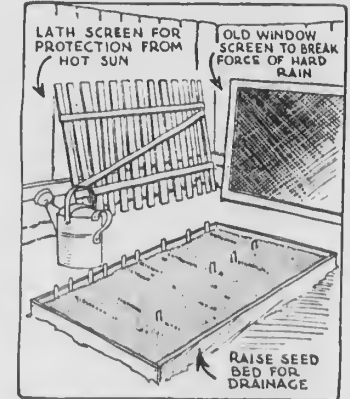

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture there are 2,000 separate varieties of vegetables grown in this country today.

To the gardener whose huge, luscious tomatoes take prizes in the fall shows, and whose corn is known about the neighborhood for its sweetness, this may not be startling news; but to those ordinary amateurs who grow a pea, bean, corn and tomato garden, with no variety from year to year, it should awaken a little curiosity.

Variety adds interest to vegetable gardening. Here are a few uncommon edibles which can be easily grown: leek, a fine onion-like flavor for soups and stews; marrow, delicious when sliced and fried; chertory or French endive, for winter salads; salsify or oyster plant, a root with a distinctive flavor which can be left in the ground over winter; and there are many others. Look for them in the new catalog.

Seedbed Protects Young Plants From Sun, Wind and Washing Rain

Select a Sheltered Position for the Seedbed if Possible.

Preparing a seedbed properly is a big step towards a successful garden. It tells the story of how much return in the way of plants you are likely to get from a packet of seeds and eliminates much waste.

Select a position sheltered from the full force of wind and sun if possible. Bear in mind that directly under the branches of trees is not a good location for the drip from the branches during rainstorms is likely to wash seeds out of the ground. Spade the soil thoroughly. It is an excellent plan if the soil breaks up with difficulty to run it through a sieve for the top layer. If the soil is heavy lighten it by working in torpedos or silver sand. Heavy soil that crusts easily is a poor medium for seed sowing. It should be easily penetrated by the tiny root striking downward and the tiny leaves pushing upward to the light and air.

It is not necessary to fertilize the seedbed. Fertility is not a requisite in producing germination. That comes in the later stages. Ordinarily good soil will do perfectly well.

If the seedbed necessarily is exposed to the full sweep of wind and sun it is an easy matter to erect a temporary fence or shelter to break the force of the wind and also an easy matter to improvise a lath screen to set over it to break the full force of the sun if hot days happen along. To break the force of driving rains which might wash seeds out of the row, window screen is excellent. Burlap may be laid over the bed until the seeds start germinating to serve the same purpose and also to prevent too rapid evaporation of the moisture.

With the seedbed carefully prepared, make it a point not to sow the seed so thickly that the plants will come up in bunches. Sow thinly and in the case of seed so fine that it is difficult to handle, mix with twice or three times its bulk of fine sand to make thin sowing easier. Space the big seeds so that the plants will not touch when they germinate.
